ENGLAND HOLDING BACK HER DEMANDS. The Czar Expresses His Profound Regret for North Sea Incident.

Great Britain's Note, Which Leaves Little Opening for Any Suggestion of Compromise, Asks Apologies for the Act of the Baltic Fleet, Full Compensation for Sufferers and Punishment of the Offenders.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Oct. 26. [Atlantic Cable. After Midnight.]—A dispatch from Hull to the Times says that the correspondent, as a result of his investigation, is of the opinion that the attack on the British fawlers by the Russian Second Pacific squadron, was a deliberate act, perpetrated with knowledge of its character.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The inevitable delays of diplomatic procedure appear to retard complete and satisfactory settlement of the differences between Great Britain and Russia arising from the deplorable North Sea affair.

King Edward has received from Emperor Nicholas a cablegram expressing the deepest regret and a practical acknowledgment that Great Britain's peremptory note will meet with a reply conceding every demand for apology for the act of aggression against the British flag, compensation for the sufferings and punishment of the officers responsible for what is everywhere conceded to have been a gigantic blunder, and the Russian Ambassador to the court of St. James has expressed to Foreign Minister Lansdowne his sorrow and sympathy.

These developments, which came late in the day, have allayed to some extent the "day of wrath" in the British press, but the Admiralty, tonight gave evidence of its appreciation of the necessity of proving that it is prepared to support the position of the people of Great Britain and all the expectations of the world, when it issued the following statement:

"On receipt on October 24 of the news of the North Sea tragedy, preliminary orders for mutual support and cooperation were issued as a measure of precaution from the Admiralty to the Channel, Mediterranean and Home fleets."

DIPLOMATS' BUSY DAY. The day has been one of the busiest in recent years in diplomatic circles here. The Russian Ambassador, who reached London only shortly before midnight Monday, was an early caller at Lansdowne House and had a long interview with Lord Lansdowne, after which the Foreign Minister drove to Downing street and conferred with Premier Balfour and others, and for the remainder of the day he was occupied with a mass of matters pertaining to the affair.

Almost momentarily the public expected some definite announcement of an official nature, but late this evening the Foreign Office announced that the "day of wrath" would be issued tonight. It is understood that this is because it is considered that it would be unwise, in the present state of public feeling, to make any intermediate proclamations concerning diplomatic proceedings, in view of Great Britain's announcement to Russia that the matter would not brook delay.

Count Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador, was occupied until late tonight at the embassy with a mass of cipher dispatches, and it was announced at the embassy that it would be physically impossible to prepare a formal reply in such a short time.

NO MORE DISORDER. While Great Britain is stirred to its depths, there has not been the slightest evidence of a repetition of the rowdiness of last night, which is condemned on all sides. The suggestion that Ambassador Benckendorff's visit to the incident of last night was trivial, and did not appear to consider it worth noticing.

Popular appreciation of the situation was evidenced when King Edward appeared in public today. He was greeted with more than usual enthusiasm on account of the decided tone of his telegram to the Mayor of Hull Monday.

PARTY DIFFERENCES SUNK. The speeches of members of the cabinet and of the House of Commons today, in different parts of the country, voice the sentiment of Great Britain, and the spirit in which the utterances were not above that for the moment party differences have been laid aside and that the country is solidly behind the government. Lord Balfour, at the Pilgrims banquet today, denounced the Dogger Bank affair in the most outspoken terms yet heard from a member of the Cabinet as "an inexcusable outrage" and "a terrible blunder which would be impossible in either the British or the American navy."

Colonial Secretary Lyttleton, too, in another place, spoke in plain terms, saying that it was impossible to view the affair as other than the result of murderous intention or wicked negligence.

The post-mortem examination of the bodies of the victims of the Dogger Bank affair was held today at Hull. The proceedings were purely formal, and no official announcement was made, but it is stated positively that both of the dead men bore wounds inflicted both by machine guns and a larger shell.

SEAMEN CARE'S REPORT. The report of Thomas Carr, admiral of the fishing fleet, dated from the North Sea, is a picturesque touch, a plain sailor's yarn of the occurrence, which was handed to Foreign Minister Lansdowne tonight.

The report is dated "The North Sea, October 22," and is as follows:

"We were fishing in lat. 55.19 north, and long. 5 east, the night of October 21. At 11:30 p.m. a large fleet of men of war sprang up on our leeward, the wind being about south-southeast. One squadron passed by our lee side. The remainder, consisting of four battleships, steamed just across our head, throwing searchlights over our fleet. As soon as they got to windward they began firing on us, their projectiles flying all around and across our decks for a full quarter of an hour, some of the shots passing under the main-sail and where the men who were gutting fish, so that they cleared out down below, one shot passing right between them. I very much regret to say that others in the fleet were not so fortunate as us in escaping hurt. The Crane was sunk, her skipper and third hand were killed and all the rest of the crew were wounded with the exception of the cook. The skipper of the Gull, it was, who being hailed by the Crane, 'We are sinking,' hove up his gear, got out a boat and went to the rescue of the unfortunate survivors."

"The Moulmein, Mino and Snipe all had shots through them, the two former vessels being obliged to make sail home, and I think two or three vessels did not board us in the morning but that may be owing to the thick weather causing them to miss the fleet."

"I don't know whether they took us for Japanese or whether they were practicing to get their hands in. There ought to have been known we were only in offensive fishermen."

"Remain, your obedient servant, [Signed]

"THOMAS CARR, Admiral."

LYTTLETON PLEA. Speaking at Leamington today, Colonial Secretary Lyttleton referred to the North Sea affair. He said he felt sure everyone, irrespective of party, would agree that the government had done the right thing in having demanded not merely reparation but that the reparation should be prompt.

In regard to the character of the outrage, Mr. Lyttleton said that, even looking at it in the calmest and most composed manner, it was impossible to regard it other than the most murderous of intentions or of the most wicked neglect.

JEWELL ELICITS CHEERS. ADMIRAL GUEST OF BRITISH. [BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.] LONDON, Oct. 25.—[By Atlantic Cable.] "I thank God that the day has come when neither the British nor the American navy can be jealous of each other's development."

SPEYER IN WRECK. New York Financier Shaken up, but Not Injured in Smash on the Mexican National.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.] LAREDO (Texas) Oct. 25.—A special train which left over the line of the Mexican National Railroad, carrying James Speyer, of the banking firm of Speyer & Co. of New York, while going at a high rate of speed, was dived between Sanchez and La Jarita, about twenty-five miles north of here. Speyer was not injured.

The wreck, it is stated, was the result of the condition of the roadbed, and the high speed—seventy-five miles—the train was making at the time. It had been the intention of the railroad officials to establish a new record between here and the City of Mexico.

DUTCH VICTORIOUS. Troops Capture Batebates, in Achin, After Sharp Fighting—Twenty Guns Taken.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.] AMSTERDAM, Oct. 25.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A dispatch from Batavia received here today reports that the Dutch troops captured Batebates, in Achin, after sharp fighting. The Achinese, the dispatch says, lost 195 killed and the Dutch captured twenty guns and had three killed and eleven wounded.

INTERNATIONAL POWER. Interesting Testimony About Joe Leiter's Deal and the Manipulation of a Celebrated Pool.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Joseph Leiter gave some interesting testimony about his stock-market dealings during his cross-examination by counsel for Thompson & Post today. Leiter said the brokers to recover $18,000, which he claims he lost through an unauthorized transaction in International Power stock. The second trial of the case is now before Justice Miller and a jury in the Supreme Court. Leiter was cross-examined by Lawyer Smyth.

"You know more about International Power than anybody else?"

"I thought I knew as much about it as two other persons."

"Did you and Joseph Headley and a third man form a pool on International Power stock?"

"Yes."

"Who controlled and operated the pool?"

"I did, while I was here."

"Who in your absence?"

"Headley."

"How much interest had Cyrus Field Judson in the pool?"

"Before one-third interest."

"What was the pool capitalized at?"

"Seven million dollars."

"Is it not a fact that you and Headley manipulated International Power and made the stock rise and fall as you pleased?"

"I guess that's so."

"Do you understand what 'wild-cat' means?"

"I do."

"Was not International Power 'wild-cat' stock?"

"No; it only fell three or four points at a time."

"Did it not drop on May 1, 1901, from sixty to seventy points?"

"I did not pay much attention to it on that day, because I was buying machinery."

"You stood to lose $5000 or $7000 that day?"

"That didn't worry me any."

SCHOOL BOOKS HARD TO GET. CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Commander Luby, in charge of the Chicago naval recruiting office, has received a letter from Gov. Dyer of Guam, announcing that public schools soon will be opened for the education of 2300 native children. The writer says he is experiencing much trouble in finding school books suitable to the needs of the work, asks for publishers' catalogues and adds that unless the books have more or less local color they practically are useless.

LARABEE BEING BESIEGED. NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Larabee, a fortified seaport of 400 inhabitants, is now besieged by the rebellious Saneel Kabyles, says a Herald dispatch from Tangier. The European residents, fearing an assault, have appealed to the foreign legations for auxiliary forces.

FINANCIERS IN GOTHAM. Nearly All of the Great Ones Are Now Visiting the Eastern Metropolis.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Nearly all of the great financiers of the country are in the city now. John D. Rockefeller is here for the first time since early spring. William Rockefeller is here for the first time in ten days. Others now in the city are J. P. Morgan, Henry H. Rogers, James Stillman, Jacob H. Schiff, E. H. Harriman and George J. Gould, the latter having just returned from the West. Both of the Moore brothers, leaders of the so-called Rock Island party, are expected here tomorrow.

GULLIBLE PARKER. Tries His Hand at Fooling People.

Former Attorney-General Knox Exposes Democratic Guff, About Trusts.

Esopus Candidate's Wall About "Corrupt Methods," in Light of Past.

Tammany's Hope of Carrying New York Depends on Corporation Aid.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.] ASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Senator P. C. Knox, who was recently Attorney-General of the United States, tonight issued a statement in answer to Parker's speech on trusts and ex-President Cleveland's remarks on the same topic. Senator Knox says:

"Within the past few days, Mr. Cleveland, in a public speech, criticized the Republican administration for not 'running amuck' in the business interests of the country, which means that he criticizes the President for not dashing wildly at everything in sight and destroying the gully and innocent alike; while Judge Parker only yesterday bewailed the fact that corporations are permitted to violate the law, and that they are contributing to the Republican cause. What can be the reason for this change of front?"

"Mr. Cleveland, on March 17, 1904, notwithstanding the decree of the Circuit Court pronouncing the 'best trust' unlawful, said it was not within the prohibition of the law, thus throwing the weight of his opinion in favor of the beef trust and against the United States, at a time when the case was pending and undecided in the highest court, while on October 21, 1904, he inferentially demanded that all incorporate business should be wantonly assailed."

"Is there any connection between Judge Parker's abandonment of his futile common law panacea, which meant immunity to the trusts, and the fact, as he alleges, that the trusts contribute to the success of the Republican party? Do the principles of law which Mr. Cleveland thought last March protected the manufacturing monopolies change in October? And if so, does the change affect the Belmont trusts, or only those which are suspected of seeing in the perpetuation of Republican administration the continued prosperity of the country?"

"Judge Parker, in his speech on Monday, also said: 'Many years have passed since my active participation in politics. In the meantime, a startling change has taken place in the method of conducting campaigns; a change not for the better, but for the worse—a change that has introduced debasing and corrupt methods, which threaten the integrity of our government.'"

"It is astonishing that Judge Parker should be willing to challenge the comparison which this statement inevitably calls out. When Judge Parker last actively participated in politics off the bench, he was chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee which elected David B. Hill as Governor. He was a cog in the Hill machine. There have never been in our political history methods more debasing and corrupt than those in the Hill machine in New York, and they culminated in the stealing of the State by frauds, and the overthrow of the Hill machine in consequence. This was the machine which Mr. Parker ran until, as a reward for running it, he was made a judge."

"Judge Parker speaks of the campaign contributions by great corporations. He states that some of the enterprises which have unduly thrived through favoritism have become so rich and strong that they can do and contribute vast sums when it is made clear that it will be advantageous to them. Judge Parker is describing precisely and exactly the source which gave Tammany Hall its strength, and the cutting off of which in the present election would remove every chance of his carrying New York State. There is not an honest man in political life who does not know that this is the case, and know that Judge Parker is seeking to be the beneficiary of the very methods which he affects to denounce."

"CORPORATION CORRUPTION." "Again Judge Parker says: 'Political contributions by corporations and trusts mean corruption. They cannot be honest. A corporation will subscribe to political party only because the corporation expects that party through its control of public offices, executive and legislative, to do

CLEVELAND TO SPEAK.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS-P.M.]
NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Announcement was made at the Tammany headquarters today, that former President Cleveland will deliver an address at a mass meeting at Cooper Union, in this city, the evening of November 2.

At the Admiralty, there were no familiar scenes of activity. There the corridors were full of newspaper correspondents and naval attaches awaiting information regarding Rojstvenitsky's report, but the Admiralty had nothing to offer in explanation of the extraordinary silence. It is felt that conditions which will insure that appropriate action shall follow the results of the investigation. In other words, that the responsibility shall be fixed and punishment meted out to the offenders, whoever they may be.

That King Edward correctly interpreted the feeling of the nation is publicly stigmatising the affair as an unwarrantable outrage.

The reception given him this morning when he started for the race meeting at New Market. A big crowd awaited the King, both at Buckingham Palace and at the railway station, and the heartiness of the cheering and the vigorous waving of hats and handkerchiefs, with occasional shouts of "God save the King," from the ultra-enthusiastic made up a remarkable demonstration.

But, at the same time, he was warned to beware of the Japanese as a factor for it was known that the movements of the Baltic fleet were being closely watched, and that Japanese spies and emissaries were everywhere present. The most significant warning of this kind came from Admiral Wirginus, who himself had had experience with Japanese methods, in a statement published some time ago.

CHILD'S TALE OF BURGLARY.

How the Little Weasles Were Made to Tremble.

Robber Locked in Mother's Room up Stairs.

Excited Boy Got Papa His Gun from Closet.

Daring was the burglary committed last evening at the residence of Harry Weiss of No. 2711 Budson avenue.

Like an unexpected guest the burglar arrived at the dinner hour. He stepped lightly up the range of a ladder placed against the front porch and admitted himself through a window with dignity and composure.

While not at all disturbed by the intruder, the mother and father, who were seated at the dining table, looked on with interest. The burglar, who was a man of about 30, was dressed in a dark suit and a light-colored shirt. He was of medium build and had dark hair.

The Weiss residence is on Budson avenue just opposite to the intersection of West Twenty-seventh street, and sits well back in the spacious grounds. It is one of the handiest in the neighborhood and as Mr. Weiss is a retired capitalist, and a lover of beautiful things, the burglar undoubtedly picked it out as a mine of spare change and rare jewels.

He was assisted in his work by the turn-up condition of the front of the house, where a large stone porch has lately been added. The painters have been busy and at night left their ladders on the ground directly under the projecting roof.

It is apparent that the place has been watched for some time and that the prowler had his bearings and acted quickly. Mr. and Mrs. Weiss left their rooms on the second floor about 6 o'clock in response to the dinner call. No suspicious sound was heard and it was not until Mr. Weiss went upstairs while dessert was being put on the table at about 6:30 o'clock and found the doors to his bedrooms locked, that he suspected anything wrong. Going downstairs at once he asked who had locked the doors on the inside of the rooms.

There was an ominous silence. "Well, then, there must be a burglar up there," said Weiss, turning to get upstairs.

"Oh, you are just joking," said his mother. "Don't leave us, papa," pleaded his little six-year-old daughter, badly frightened.

"But I am not teasing; I tell you that both of those doors are locked on the inside and there must be a burglar up there," said Weiss, turning to get upstairs.

As Harry Weiss and his father started up the stairs the two women and the five little children in chorus begged them not to go.

"We just waited and held our breath expecting to hear a pistol shot any minute," said the grandmother of the little ones who had no fear of burglars as she talked with a Times reporter last evening.

It was awfully scared and wanted to get under the table," chimed in a golden-haired girl.

"Yes, you started to cry, you baby. Who was scared? I wasn't," said her brother of 12 years. "I ran and got papa a gun from the back closet, but he didn't get any chance to use it or we would have killed the burglar."

"Yes, and he got mud all over mamma's nice rug and just turned everything upside down," interrupted another little Weiss.

"Children, children, you must not all talk at once; the report wants to know just what happened," kindly interposed the grandmother.

"Let me tell him," clamored four of them at once.

yacht. Capt. Kock of the Pride had no difficulty in convincing the authorities that he was not carrying contraband goods. However, when the officers of the Manning demanded the Pride's papers trouble commenced, as the yacht had none to show. The law requires all vessels of over five tons displacement to register with the marine authorities, and a boat carrying passengers are required by law to take out a license, only licensed engineers and captains being allowed to handle passenger boats. Capt. Kock had the proper papers, but Engineer Nelson had not, neither had the Pride a license. The authorities said the Pride was bound directly for San Pedro for repairs. Capt. Kock was allowed to continue his voyage, but on arriving at that port he found the Manning had arrived first. The Pride was confiscated pending the payment of the fine, but the captain and crew were allowed to return to Santa Barbara.

YOUNG HOTEL THIEF.
A mystery which has surrounded the disappearance of many articles of small value belonging to guests and employees of the Arlington Hotel, has been solved. This morning, Hughes, an elevator boy, for some time articles of clothing and jewelry, never of enough value to provoke a very searching examination, have been missing from rooms, and complaints have been made to the management. Yesterday one of the hall boys, named Hughes, was found with a large quantity of stolen goods in his possession. He was arrested and is now in custody of the police.

NEWBOY HURT.
This evening Jack Freeman, a newspaper carrier boy, fell from the roof of a building while engaged in removing a sign. Young Freeman sustained severe injuries, his right arm was broken in two places. He was taken to his home for treatment.

CHAPTER XVII.
THE LOVE OF RAMESEH.
By the 28th of May, the court of Meneptha was ready to proceed to Tanis.

The next week the Pharaoh would depart. Tonight he received noble Memphis for a final review. His palace was aglow from its tremendous portals to the airy hypostyle upon its roof and from far-reaching wings to wing, with counted towers and lights. From every architrave and cornice depended garlands and draperies, and tinted banners waved unseen in the dark. The great lotiform pillars supporting the porch were festooned with garlands and the roof was strewn with palm leaves.

When the portals opened, a broad shaft of light shot into the night, a multitude of attendants was seen bowing, kneeling, music and babble and the smell of willow flowers and Puntian incense swept into the outer hall. Within, the great feast began and proceeded to completeness. The tables were removed and the stage of the revel was raised upon the level of scented vapor from the aromatic incense, undisturbed midway between the lotiform pillars. The banquet hall was a vast hall, the floor was paved with the finest of the lotiform pillars. The banquet hall was a vast hall, the floor was paved with the finest of the lotiform pillars.

The company, which was large, had fallen into groups, and the Pharaoh, who was seated at the head of the table, was looking at the guests. He was looking at the guests, who were seated at the head of the table. He was looking at the guests, who were seated at the head of the table. He was looking at the guests, who were seated at the head of the table.

There was Seti at Ta-user's side, but he was not at the feast. She mourned for Kenenese. Ta-user was there, the bride of a week to Nechut, who had come to her without eye or ear for the Pharaoh. He was seated at the head of the table, and he was looking at the guests. He was looking at the guests, who were seated at the head of the table. He was looking at the guests, who were seated at the head of the table.

"The game of draughts, played from one to many had ended disastrously for the Pharaoh, in spite of his most gallant efforts to win. He had lost the game, and he was looking at the guests. He was looking at the guests, who were seated at the head of the table. He was looking at the guests, who were seated at the head of the table.

GIRL IS DRAGGED ON ROCK ROAD.

OVER QUARTER OF MILE BEHIND
RUNAWAY MULE.

Emma Culbertson of Santa Barbara, bruised from head to foot, yet no bones broken—Federal authorities seize unlicensed yacht. Pride Pending Payment of Fine.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)
SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 2.—Emma Culbertson, the twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Culbertson of this city had a narrow escape from death yesterday. While playing with her young brother and some friends in a large vacant lot, she attempted to lead away a mule which was tied to the fence with a long rope. In untiring the animal she became tangled in the rope. The mule took fright and ran, and the little girl was dragged. For over a quarter of a mile, along a rough and stony road, she was jerked and bumped by the frantic animal, which finally turned into an orchard and brought her against a barbed-wire fence.

The little girl's cries brought assistance at once, and after being untried from the rope, her rescuers were astonished to see her without assistance, although her clothes were torn almost completely off, and her body covered with cuts and bruises. Medical examination showed that no bones had been broken, and as nearly as could be learned no internal injuries sustained.

YACHT PRIZE SEIZED.

The Federal authorities have taken possession of the power yacht Pride, which has been used in a recent trip between this city and Santa Cruz Island during the summer. The boat having been seized as security for the payment of a $50 fine imposed for violation of the marine regulations. The Pride had a rather exciting experience with the revenue cutter Manning in the Santa Barbara Channel the other day, when the cutter overhauled and searched the

MR. CLEVELAND RAMPANT.

At Carnegie Hall in New York on Friday evening of last week, ex-President Grover Cleveland made his first and last appearance in the pending campaign. In matter and manner his address was in the most characteristic Cleveland style. Foul-mouthed, self-satisfied and dignified, he calmly accused his political opponents of about all the crimes in the political calendar, and glorified the Democracy as the only party of purity, patriotism and safety. Mr. Cleveland may believe these things himself—possibly—but he can never deceive the American people into looking upon the Democratic party as the sum of all political wisdom and virtue. The people have too recently suffered from Democratic misgovernment to look with any degree of credulity upon such a proposition.

Mr. Cleveland declared that "the advantages of the present party control" have been "palpably and unambiguously used for its perpetuation." He evidently expected his mere ipse dixit in this matter to pass current as gospel truth, for he cited no facts in support of it. In truth, with due deference to Mr. Cleveland as an ex-President of this republic, it was impossible for him to cite facts in support of his assertion that Republicans are using the advantages of party control in any wrongful manner to keep themselves in office. Let Mr. Cleveland specify, if he hopes to have his bombastic utterances received as the truth. He declares that "the functions belonging to the entire American people have been insolently forced to do partisan service." What functions? What service? It is an easy matter to make charges of this kind. It is more difficult to give them the value of truth. We have had a maximum of glittering generalities in this campaign, from our Democratic opponents, and a minimum of demonstrable truth.

"When before," asked Mr. Cleveland, "has it been so distinctly claimed that all the virtues, all the patriotism and all the governing ability of our citizenship are found among the members of one political party; and when before have those of our citizens not among the chosen been so boldly considered as aliens in their own land, who should be cast into outer political darkness, as unworthy to be entrusted with the power and responsibility of a government established by the people and for the people?" To quote is more than a sufficient answer to this inconsequential rubbish. The memory of man runneth hardly to a time when the party championed by Mr. Cleveland did not arrogate to itself most of the political virtues, nor attribute to its opponents most of the political vices. As for the fitness of parties to govern, the votes of the people determine the question. For more than half a century the people have decided in favor of the Republican party at each quadrennial election, with the exception of the two in which Mr. Cleveland himself was elected President. His first term in office, though not a brilliant success, was not disastrous to the country, for a Republican Senate held it in check. His second administration was a most disastrous failure. The people have not forgotten it, and they want no more such failures. If Mr. Cleveland and his party have been "cast into outer political darkness," let them blame the American people for it; for the people themselves decreed it, by the largest popular pluralities ever given in the world's history.

From beginning to end, Mr. Cleveland's address was one long-drawn-out whine of grief, unworthy of the man and of the exalted position which he once occupied. In trying to make it appear that the Republican party is unfit to rule, and that, in consequence, our cherished institutions are in "grievous peril," he committed the same sin of "reckless assertion" which he attributed to Republicans. His claim that the Democratic party, as a party, is entitled to credit of any kind for the establishment of the gold standard, is too preposterous for sober discussion. His attempt to criticize the Republican party because the trusts have not all been crushed, is ridiculous when it is remembered that during his two administrations no attempt was made to interfere with the operations of trusts was made.

After the experience which we had with the Gorman-Wilson tariff, Mr. Cleveland's attempt to instruct the people in tariff lore appears rather ridiculous, to say the least. His talk on the subject of "imperialism" was mostly borrowed from Bryan—though both of these worthy representatives of opposite ends of the Democratic donkey would probably get mad at him if this statement were made in their presence. It is needless to follow Mr. Cleveland's tedious oratory further. As it was made up of generalities, it is properly answered with generalities. Mr. Cleveland has never been given to the use of definite statements, affording opportunity for definite refutation. His Carnegie Hall speech in the first he has made during this campaign. Fortunately for the Democracy, it is also his last.

PARKER'S BAD BREAKS.

It is doubtful whether Judge Alton B. Parker or William J. Bryan is doing the greater injury to the Democratic cause in the campaign now drawing to a close. There is one difference, however, between the efforts of these two men. The injury which Bryan inflicts upon the Democratic cause is deliberate, intentional, born of malice prepense. The injury which Parker inflicts is unintentional, possibly unconscious, and is born of a desire to help rather than to hinder the cause. Republicans could desire nothing better than that both Parker and Bryan should continue to make speeches to the end of the campaign, for every one of such speeches contributes to increase the number of votes which will be cast for Roosevelt and Fairbanks at the forthcoming election.

The more recent speeches of Judge Parker have been especially unfortunate for the cause of which he is ostensibly the leader. His utterances regarding the Philippines have been so recklessly disregardful of the truth that they would put to blush the veriest ranting demagogue of the campaign. Wherever he has ventured to quote figures, his statements have been quickly refuted by quotations from official records. In a recent speech Judge Parker stated that our gross expense account for the Philippines had been something over $600,000. Both Secretary Taft and Senator Fairbanks almost immediately refuted this statement by quoting official figures showing that Judge Parker's figures were something like $400,000 too high, and that the island government is self-supporting.

Judge Parker declared in a subsequent speech that the islands are in an extremely bad way, socially, financially and otherwise. He declared that the officials of the insular government had been inefficient, dishonest, corrupt and despotic; that "the situation in the Philippines to-day is so terrible that it passes the comprehension of our people at home;" that "agriculturally, the country is for the time ruined;" that "the country is overburdened with taxation;" that "the population is ill-fed;" that freedom of speech and of the press has been destroyed—with other lies too numerous to mention here in detail. Knowing these statements to be false and malicious, Secretary Taft cabled to Gov. Luke Wright at Manila, asking him for a statement as to conditions. Gov. Wright (formerly, if not now, a Democrat) promptly answered, refuting Judge Parker's charges seriatim, so effectively as to leave no doubt that Judge Parker is either a deliberate prevaricator or has been grossly misinformed as to the situation of affairs in the Philippines. In either case, whether Judge Parker is so glibly as to believe the misinformation which he is retelling, so volubly, or whether he intentionally makes these misstatements, he is hardly fit to be President of the United States.

Judge Parker has recently twice accused the administration of issuing orders forbidding the publication of information concerning government receipts and expenditures. These accusations have naturally raised doubts as to Judge Parker's intelligence and information on current events. A man of his reputed intelligence ought to know that the Treasury Department issues daily "a printed statement showing the exact condition of the government's finances up to the hour of 2 p.m. of the day of issue." All expenses and all receipts of the treasury are included, and a balance is shown, making it clear whether the day's transactions show a surplus or a deficit. Any citizen who desires to obtain this statement can easily obtain it. Judge Parker could have had it mailed to him free each day by merely asking for it.

It is much to be regretted that Judge Parker should not have informed himself, from reliable sources, before attacking the administration with false statements as to the government's receipts and expenditures. More still it is a subject for regret that he should have seen fit to make the utterly untenable statement that the suppression of information about the government's receipts and expenditures had been ordered. Again it is clear that Judge Parker is either misinformed or that he makes these statements maliciously, knowing them to be false. Whichever horn of the dilemma he may see fit to take, his unfitness for the Presidency is conspicuously apparent.

"INJUNS."

It is to be regretted that among the resolutions passed by the Indian Conference at Lake Mohonk was one, according to the Associated Press, "favoring immediate action for the relief of the Pimas of Southern California, who have been deprived of their water rights and are in a starving condition." Passing by the immaterial point that the Pimas live in Arizona and not in California, the resolution is to be regretted from the fact that it states conditions that are not existent. In answer to the same charge, evidence has gone to the Secretary of the Interior from the agent and superintendent on the reservation, from the chief clerk of the Interior Department, who made a careful examination of the Pimas and their reservation, and even from Indian Commissioner Jones himself, after a personal visit, that the Pimas are far from being in a starving condition, but, on the contrary, are fat and are relatively prosperous. Action such as proposed by their mistaken friends at Mohonk would simply tend to pauperize a tribe that is beginning to make considerable headway in the civilization of the white man. And misstatements such as these are very apt to lead to a general discrediting of the reports and work of the Mohonk organization. The Pima Indians should be returned their ancient irrigating dam by means of a water storage dam on the Gila, and there can be little doubt that Congress will appropriate for the structure within a short time. When this has been done, the Pimas will become wealthy through the results of their own industry. It would be little short of a crime to put them upon the rack of the old blanket Indian system.

Just as soon as this election is over with the Thanksgiving proclamation, the Pimas will become wealthy through the results of their own industry. It would be little short of a crime to put them upon the rack of the old blanket Indian system.

HOW THE NEGRO IS CHEATED.

SCHEMES WHICH DISFRANCHISE HIM IN THE SOUTH.

All Sorts of Ingenious Devices Employed by White Democrats to Control the Results of Elections—Prominent Citizens Become Party to Various Frauds.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTION TO THE TIMES.

The story of election schemes to control the negro vote in the South has been exploited a thousand times, but the mysteries of the systems employed are as yet an unexplained enigma to the uninitiated. That so vast a political factor, invested by the organic law of the land with the right of suffrage, could be for a third of a century completely deprived of the effective use of their franchise is almost incredible, especially when it is remembered that the negroes were so aggressive in their demand for the full exercise of all his constitutional rights, and the dominant political party of the nation has jealously defended his privileges and vigorously defended the method employed.

It is the intent of the writer to discuss on the morals or economics involved, but simply to tell how the negro votes in the South and why his suffrage is an absolutely negative force. A few incidents will suffice to demonstrate the methods employed.

In certain counties in Florida some years ago the battle for what is called "white supremacy" was a most desperate one. The negroes were enticed by white men from other States and their numerical superiority was not questioned. If the white men could be counted as intended the result was a foregone conclusion. The whites, to the man, were solidly Republican. Party politics, economics, patriotism and reason were all lost sight of by both sides. Votes were what counted.

The negro preacher has always been the political oracle as well as the Leviticus of the sons of Ham. Knowing the weakness of the colored pulpit, the Democrats proceeded to buy negro preachers in the county by the wholesale, and put them on the stump to make Republican speeches. They had the churches organized into Republican clubs. The Sunday before election every congregation was solemnly warned that no colored voter should accept a ballot on election day from any white man; that the pastor would stand at the polls and give each voter a ballot to cast. On election day the pastors were at the respective polling places, each with a handful of Democratic votes and a pocketful of Democratic votes. As each colored voter approached he was handed a folded Democratic ticket and no persuasion could cause the confiding brother to cast any other ballot. Of course the result was astonishing to the colored contingent and was "denounced" by the pastors as "fraudulent."

In another bitter campaign the decisive return was to come from a country precinct where there were 265 colored votes and only 72 whites; the parties being arrayed in exact race proportions. The election was held in a crook-road store. Three white managers were selected, all Democrats. The election was harmonious and absolutely fair. One colored manager was placed in the window to receive the ballots from the voters; another colored manager was to number the ballots and the third colored manager was to deposit it in the box. It was thus arranged by the whites so that no white man would touch a ballot. This pleased the nagrees wonderfully. The voting was done rapidly and by noon every ballot in the precinct was in the box. As the managers had nothing to do during the balance of the day, a recess was taken, the ballot box was sealed and left in the custody of the colored managers while the white managers went to a room for dinner. They returned in an hour and had the colored managers break the seal and the polls remained open until the legal hour for closing. The ballot box was taken to the back part of the store, the negroes on the outside came very near lynching the negro managers, believing that they had sold out to the whites. "Well, this day they do not know how it was done."

Simple enough. It was known in advance how many would vote. Two ballot boxes exact, alike were prepared. One to vote in; the other already filled with ballots. A white manager picked up the ballot box when they moved to the rear of the store. Before day on the polls, and stepping behind the counter to get his overcoat on his way—as the weather was cool—he placed the ballot box in the rear of the store.

In another Southern State the custom prevailed that a qualified white man should vote in any precinct in the county regardless of the precinct in which he was registered. The negroes were naturally in a majority of votes being cast at the county seat where great crowds collected on election day. The Democrats, particularly fond of crowds, and it was at these places they gathered to vote.

In the Congress district referred to there was an enormous majority of negro votes—too many to make it economical to purchase. On this occasion a New England Republican was running for Congress against a southern Democrat. The Yankee candidate was shrewd and industrious, and spent money lavishly among the colored contingent. An immense crowd of negroes was naturally looked for at the election morning the Democrats gathered at the only voting place, and had arranged to vote in the morning before daylight. When the polls were opened every white man who could be urged to come and vote, and the negroes crowded in to vote. The whites, however, were not long in discovering the strategic move of the whites. The whites had violated no law in reaching the polling place first nor in crowding in to vote, but from the blockade and the evident dilatory tactics in voting the negroes saw poor chances for casting their ballots that day. Murmurs of discontent among the negroes grew into threats, but the Democrats continued to vote with fine staying persistence, evidenced after their ballots were cast. By 10 o'clock almost all the whites had voted, and as the negro complaints grew boisterous and likely to provoke a contest of the legality of the election, a conference between the leaders resulted in an agreement that a white man and a negro should be allowed to vote alternately. Under these conditions, the whites having already polled a solid vote, the negro vote of over five hundred, the pairing of votes would never change the result.

The situation looked on a dramatic turn divided turn at the polls for the balance of the day. Something had to be done, and done quickly to avert the result which, for the time seemed inevitable. The tip was given the election managers, and every possible disloyal measure was resorted to. Every one present, himself, and every one offering to vote. The oath was administered and extracts from the Constitution of the State and of the United States and parts of the Declaration of Independence were read to every one presenting himself at the balloting place. No plausible means was overlooked to kill time and delay voting. The fear was even that the negroes would vote in a majority. There was a close observation of the crowd that something was amiss. Very soon a big crowd gathered in the courtroom. A man climbed up in the crowd and addressed the negroes, and drew upon the negroes the influence of the colored people. He said that the negroes should be allowed to vote, and that every man could cast his ballot without obstruction or violence. The negroes were then allowed to vote, and the whites were not long in deciding that the negroes were not to be trifled with. A signal four of the negroes of the crowd and the whites all left the polling place and the whites began to vote in the polling place. The whites were then allowed to vote, and the negroes were not long in deciding that the negroes were not to be trifled with. LIVED THOUGH OTHERS FELL.

NOW DEATH TAKES SURVIVOR OF ILL-FATED PARTY.

Passing of Jerome Bonaparte Alrich, Who Escaped When Utah Party Perished in Death Valley. Sympathy for Haise Goes—Murderer Sentenced.

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 25.—Jerome Bonaparte Alrich, one of the survivors of the ill-fated Death Valley party, which lost its way while trying to find a short cut to Sacramento from the old Spanish trail to California, died in the County Hospital last night, at the advanced age of 83. The funeral will be conducted tomorrow at a local undertaking parlors under the auspices of the San Bernardino County Pioneer Society.

For fifteen years, Mr. Alrich had been incapacitated on account of age.

that if he proves a good prisoner five months for each year of sentence will be deducted in his favor. The prisoner heard his sentence without a murmur, though a slight pallor settled over his face, and he set his jaws hard.

The prisoner rehearsed the circumstances leading up to the killing, which were almost substantially the same as have already been published, and explained that the woman in the case had told him she did not love Chavez, and had planned to elope. Later she told her mind settled on getting Chavez's money, and married him, and a few minutes before the shooting Chavez and the woman had heaped insults upon him. Aguilera will be taken north under strong guard.

GREATEST RALLY EVER HERE. The greatest political rally in history of the section was held here tonight under the auspices of the Republican County Central Commission, assisted by Riverside Republicans, who came over several hundred strong. The street parade was one of the greatest sights ever witnessed in this community, 1000 men being in line, and over a hundred Japanese lanterns adding to the brilliancy of the night.

For fifteen years, Mr. Alrich had been incapacitated on account of age.

The Above Illustration Shows the Remarkable Effects of This Wonderful Obesity Food—What It Has Done for Others It Will Do for You.

Knows fat is a disease. It is caused by improper assimilation of food. Nutrition which should go into muscle, bone, brain, and nerve does not go there, but piles up in the form of superfluous fat, which clogs the human machinery and compresses the vital organs of the body and endangers health and life.

My New Obesity Food, taken at meal times, completes perfect assimilation of the food and sends the food nutrients where it belongs. It requires no dieting or starvation process. You can eat all you want. It makes muscle, bone, sinew, nerve and brain tissue, out of excess fat, and quickly reduces your weight to normal.

TICKTACKING
SORRY FUN.FIVE URGHINS IN JAIL FOR MALICIOUS MISCHIEF.

Made Spooky Sounds With Bottle and String and Frightened Dwellers in Houses—Worse than that the Gang Tore Down Signs and Destroyed Property.

"Ticktacking," a form of amusement indulged in by a band of East Los Angeles boys, frightened one child into hysterics, caused another to run wildly into a barbed-wire fence, and so incensed the people of the neighborhood that the police were appealed to, with the result that five of the urchins are locked in the City Jail.

The doings of the "ticktackers" have not been characterized by the usual Halloween pranks of youngsters, but vandalism has been resorted to until residents of Pasadena avenue between avenues 22 and 28, as well as some of those on side streets, are up in arms.

Monday night the "ticktackers" visited the home of T. E. Hayes, No. 123 North Avenue 22, while adult members of the family were absent. A string fastened to a bottle was attached above the door in such a way that an unearthly noise could be produced while the operators were a block distant.

Only two small children were in the house at the time, and one of them, a little girl of 7, was so frightened that she became hysterical. The other child rushed from the house, scared out of her wits, and ran into a barbed-wire fence. The pointed bars cruelly lacerated her arms and face before she could be extricated by neighbors attracted by her screams.

The house of J. Jones, No. 217 North Avenue 22, was also ticktacked, and then further tactics were employed. Signs of the First Ward drug store at Pasadena avenue and Dely street were torn down and destroyed; a man in a wagon was stoned; signs were torn from Adams store at Pasadena avenue and Avenue 22, and windows were smashed in the residence of J. T. DeWar, No. 229 Pasadena avenue.

Sergeant McKee and Patrolman DeWitt of the East Side Police Station rounded up the gang of night, and captured Alfred Klipp, John Tedford, alias "Gookoo," George Kosinsky, Ralph Kasse and Emil Kessler, Clarence Holt and other known members of the organization. In jail before they cease their efforts.

DOOR SPORT
FOR GUNNERS.DUCK LIMITS FEW AND A LONG DISTANCE BETWEEN.

Some New Tackle Coming in and Reports of Better Prospects on the Marshes—Not Many to Shoot at Sunday, and The Few Were Very Wild—The Quail.

Pipe dreams from the marshes telling tales of "new birds just in" sent a fresh batch of duck hunters scurrying afield on late afternoon cars yesterday. Scattergun cranks are a hopeful set and probably most of them didn't need much encouragement.

For the good of the sport perhaps it is just as well if a change for the better does take place. The game was enough to give the most inveterate duck hunter a headache last Sunday. Ducks were scarcer than good prizes in a five cent grab-bag. What there were had an exaggerated idea of a gun's carrying ability, and utterly refused to take any chances. The fellows who managed to scrape together half a dozen brace of good birds were to be congratulated and some of the good shots quit early in disgust. The terrific opening bombardment left a mark on this season's sport that will not be erased until a stiff storm sweeps down the San Joaquin Valley and brings in a new, more unsophisticated flight of fowl.

When as good a shot as Jim Matfield fails to get the limit on as good a preserve as the Newport club nothing further need be said about the fate of the gunners in that district. Mr. Matfield and E. W. Murphy, Jr., tried it again last night and are probably knocking 'em down right merrily by this time.

The Lomita and adjoining clubs had an off-colored day, some of the members, among others Frank Eckley, leaving last night for the scene to wipe out the unpleasant recollections with something good for a change.

The usual bunch of experts held forth on the Green Wing but with different luck. John Hauerman with his new sixteen gauge Sauer ejector bowled over thirty-five and surrendered to the heat; the little gun much to his surprise raked 'em down as high as old Betsey, and nothing short of a divorce will part the big fellow and his latest pet, Auguste Marquis.

shot in the island blind with good success considering conditions. Tom Stovell and the rest of the regular brigade kept what few birds there were on the quill until ten o'clock when the squad beat a precipitate retreat for the shade of the clubhouse. The Green Wing club turned in the big well on the Mitchell place last Sunday and will have plenty of water hereafter. This big water gusher is quite a curiosity in its way, being the biggest well in this end of the State.

Sport in the Ballona district was below grade also. The hot weather aids this section by bringing in the late morning flights of the ocean through the thirst of the big ducks. On the Recreation only ordinary luck fell to the members. The up-country clubs did well enough.

More test were noticed Sunday and all were very fat and plump. These toothsome little fellows will begin to come in force soon and then for a few weeks the gunners will enjoy very keen fun. A few gadwells are making their appearance, and some mallards. John Hauerman made a high double on canvasbacks Sunday on the Green Wing.

A few reported good bags of quail in the San Fernando Valley. The more remote parts of this happy hunting ground of the Sunday shooter are not yet killed out. J. T. Carrier and E. Hall, both hunters from the Green Wing, went to Newhall and the former got the limit, Palmdale killing but five less.

John Hauerman is making his home in the country. He is said to be getting at least one good shoot.

ANOTHER BATTLESHIP.

Bids Asked by the Navy Department for Construction of the New Hampshire.

[New York Times.] The various ship-building concerns which are expected to bid for the construction of the 16,000-ton battleship New Hampshire, have received circulars from the Navy Department defining the chief characteristics of the new ship. The plans show a vessel 420 feet long, with an extreme breadth at the load water line of 76.18 feet, and a mean draft to bottom of the keel not to exceed 34.4 feet.

It is also provided that the new battleship shall have a coal capacity of 2500 tons, and that she must be able to attain a speed of 18 knots, with a premium for increase and a penalty for decrease while, should the rate of speed fall below 17 1/2 knots, the vessel may be accepted at a reduced price or rejected altogether by the government.

In all great vessels of the New Hampshire class, the point of greatest interest is her armament. The main battery will consist of four breech-loading 12-inch rifles, which will be located in electrically controlled rotating turrets fore and aft, each with an arc of fire of about 270 deg. There will be eight 8-inch guns, which will also be in pairs, and located in turrets controlled in the same manner as the 12-inch turrets. These turrets will be located two on each beam, at each end of the superstructure. There will be twelve 7-inch guns, which will be arranged in broadside on pedestal mounts, will be protected by 7-inch armor, each gun being isolated by splinter bulkheads of nickel steel from one to two inches in thickness. The forward and after 7-inch guns will be arranged to fire ahead and astern respectively, while the other guns of this caliber will have the usual broadside train.

The guns constituting the secondary battery will have a larger arc of unobstructed fire, and will consist of twenty 3-inch, twelve 3-pound, and four 1-pound semi-automatic guns, with 12-inch field guns, two machine guns, and two automatic guns, all of the pieces to be located in commanding positions. Four torpedo tubes, two each in forward and after submerged torpedo rooms, will also be installed.

A complete belt of armor, 9.3 feet wide and having a thickness of 9 inches for about 225 feet amidships and gradually decreasing to 4 inches at the stem and stern, will protect the hull at the water line. The lower casemate armor will extend to just abreast the 12-inch barbettes, and will reach from the top of the water-line belt to the lower edge of the 7-inch gun ports on the gun decks, and will be 7 inches thick. The armor surrounding the 7-inch guns will also be 7 inches thick. The 12-inch turrets will be protected by a front plate 12 inches, a rear plate 8 inches, and a top plate 2 1/2 inches thick. The armor protecting the 8-inch and other guns will be proportionately thick.

The New Hampshire's engines will be of the vertical twin-screw, four-cylinder, triple-expansion type, and will have an indicated horse power of about 16,500. The vessel will be fitted as a flagship, and will carry a complement of 41 officers, 815 men, and 60 marines.
